VETERANS OF THE 11TH ARMY CORPS TELL A FEW.

Gen. Carl Schurz Writing His Reminis cences-Asks for a Helping Hand and Wishes He Were 65-Col. Chisholm Tells of the Attack on Sumter-How Grant Became an Inveterate Smoker

Men of the old Eleventh Army Corps, banded together as the Eleventh Army Corps Association, camped last night at Martin's Tavern, at the junction of the Twenty-sixth crossroad and the Fifth avenue turnpike. Sitting around the headquarters campfire were Col. A. C. Hamlin of Bangor, Me., president of the association Gen. Charles H. Grosvenor of Ohio, Gen. Carl Schurz, Gen. James Grant Wilson, Gen. Horatio C. King, Col. Chisholm of South Carolina and Major J. M. Jewett of Ohio. Around the other fires were these:

Keyes, Jr., Signor Branchi, the Italian Consul-General; Alexander T. Mason, whom Gov. There is no place like a campfire for reminiscence, and so all the talk was of strenreminiscence, and so an the talk was of stren-uous times gone by. Col. Hamlin made a brief address, and then introduced Gen. Grosvenor, who read a eulogy of Gen. Orland Smith, who once was commander of the corps. Gen. Schurz was asked to draw on his store of war tales. In doing so he said:

It may interest some of you, my old comrades, to know that I am now engaged in writing the reminiscences of my somewhat busy and not uninteresting life. (Cries of How young would you like to be, Gen-eral?" asked the officer.

"Oh, I would like it," said Moltke, "if I were

Gen. Schurz's remarks were loudly ap-Gen. Schurz's remarks were loudly applauded. Gen. Stewart L. Woodford followed with a brief speech. Then Col. Hamlin introduced Col. Chisholm of South Carolina, who, Col. Hamlin said, was the man who fired the first shot on Fort Sumter. Col. Chisholm got up and said that was wrong, and told this about it:

A man named James, who has joined the majority, was the man who did that job. For some time before the outbreak of the civil war I lived on Chisholm Island in Charleston Harbor. I used to shoot duck and go fishing, and was a good all-around waterfowl. waterfowl.

One day Gen. Beauregard sent for me and said that he wanted me to help build fortifications for Charleston. I told him I could catch fish and shoot ducks, but I reckoned I didn't knowmuch about fortification building.

So I pitched in and d id what I could to build the Charleston fortifications. by and

We told him that we weren't looking for any trouble, but of course, if he didn't know when he was well off, why, we didn't suppose we could convince him and that there would necessarily have to be some shooting. So we went back to town, and when things were ready James fired the first shot. I fired some, but James's gun was the one that opened Col. Chisholm told what a narrow escape the Union forces had from winning the first Bull Run, and said that nothing could have saved the Confederates had Gen. McDowell marched straight at them instead of making the wide detour which he did. Gen. James Grant Wilson told how Gen. Grant became the inveterate smoker that he was. He said that after the Fort Donelson fight the newspapers all over the North were filled with the story of how the silent

Captain had fought that fight with an unlighted cigar in his mouth.

"Up to that time," said Gen.Wilson, "Gen. Grant never smoked more than two cigars a day in his life. When the people of the North found that their commander evi-dently liked cigars, loyal souls from every great Northern city sent in cigars to Grant's headquarters until he had piled up in his tent 20,000 cigars.

"He felt that it wouldn't be polite to return them or to give them away, so the only thing to do was to smoke them. That was the beginning of it, and it ended with the smoking of something like a bunch of cigar every day."

Major Jewett, Gen. Horatio C. King and

Gen. Lockman added to the store of remin-iscences, after which "aps" was sounded and the veterans turned in,

Property, Says Mr. Krotel. At the hearing in the Tombs police court yesterday in the case of James S. Alderdice the lawyer accused of having uttered false deeds of the property of the late Mary J. Oliver, Assistant District Attorney Krotel declared that the prosecution expects to prove that the Alderdice family had formed combination to gather in the old woman's entire estate. The statement was brought out by the objections of the defendant's lawyer, Abraham Levy, to the admission of a question regarding an account which James Alderdice, the defendant's father and Mrs Oliver's adviser, had in an uptown bank at the time of his death. Mrs. Emma Jacobson, Mrs. Oliver's grand-daughter, testified that her grandmother heartily disliked both the Rev. Mr. Alderdice and his son, and tolerated them only because she "could use them." She denied emphatically that Alderdice senior was Mrs. Oliver's agent, although she admitted she once borrowed $300 of her grandmother's funds from the old man.

On one occasion the Rev. Mr. Alderdice had asked the old woman in Mrs. Jacobson's presence if she had made a will. Mrs. Oliver had replied:

"You mind your own business. You'll never get a cent of my money. And as for you children, you'll get it when I'm through with it and not before."

MORE ROUGH PLAY IN THE GAR-

The crowd at the indoor football games in Madison Square Garden last night was not so large as on Monday, but there was plenty of enthusiasm. The Franklin, Pa., team denight by a score of 12 to 0. In the preliminary the Mohawk A. C. of The Bronx beat St. Peters of Brooklyn, 18 to 0. There was slugging and rough play at times which required police interference.

The meeting between the Mohawks of The Bronx and St. Peter's Catholic Library Association of Brooklyn, in the series for the local championship, was the cause of a vocal uproar from the adherents of these teams, who yelled, sang and whistled through mega-phones and rolled newspapers until the musicians in the balcony over the Madison avenue entrance looked weary. It was the St. Peter's kick-off, and the Mohawks rushed the ball down to the Brooklynites' 20-yard line. At that point the St. Peter's boys pushed the Mohawks back for a loss and incidentally a policeman was upset and buried under a pile of struggling players, his helmet receiving many bruises. By dint of swift attacks of backs and tackles the Mo-hawks finally shoved Everard over the line for a touchdown, but Acker missed the goal. Then Carey, who had succeeded Cassidy, made a second touchdown, from which Acker kicked a goal, and the score was 11 to 0.

The second half had not been under way a minute before there was some real slugging.

The Franklin team lined up against the Orange A C. at 10 o'clock. Among the Franklin players were the old University of Pennsylvania stars. Wallace, McFarland and Davidson. It was Orange's kick-off, and no sooner had Davidson run the ball back than Wallace and Jimmy Hughes, the wrestler, got into a fight which made two policemen run on the field, and the scrap stopped instantly. Roller of Franklin finally got over the line, Davidson kicking the goal. After the kick-off Orange secured the oval on downs and slowly worked it to the 15-yard lined, where it went to Franklin. Then the first half ended.

Franklin kicked off in the second half, and Orange began a hot attack. When finally held for the third down, Truax punted, and Pritchard nailed Steinberg on the 10-yard line. Davidson, Wallace and Roller then dashed to the middle of the field. It was fast and furious after that, Roller and Davidson fixhting their way to Orange's 15-yard line. Slugging began to crop out, Wood and Schwem having a warm mixup. But Franklin lost the ball on a fumble, and Orange, also fumbling, was forced back to the 5-yard ine. The next moment it was Franklin's ball, only to go back to Orange on downs on the 1-yard line. Davidson finally made a touchdown and kicked the goat, the score standing 12 to 0 at the end.

The miner did well, but did not impress the critics as being a fighter who could give Jim Jeffries a battle, let alone whip him. Dan Donnelly of Boston was the referee. Limerick, who weighed over 200 pounds, seemed to be in good trim. Munroe was also in shape, and his weight was announced at 195 pounds. In spite of Limerick's unknown qualities as a puglist he was made the favorite in the betting, but there was no Muuroe money in sight. Tom O'Rourke was Limerick's chief second, and for this reason many thought the Buffalo scrapper was a world beater.

Limerick towered several inches over Munroe and looked bigger. He started the fight by putting the left on the face. A clinch followed, and Munroe landed the left on the body. Limerick then tried several swings, missing them. He was a bad judge of distance. When he rushed, Munroe bammered away at the body and made the Buffalo fighter wabble with a stiff right on the jaw. In the second round Limerick was very unsteady and many of his blows went astray. Munroe on the other hand, was cautious and reached Limerick's face and body with lefts and rights. One left delivered flush on Limerick's face made the latter wince. The latter's next effort was another rush, but he could not reach his opponent, who was shifty and careful. Just as the round ended Munroe planted the right on the body, nearly doubling Limerick up.

Munroe began the fight in earnest in the third round. After Limerick had missed twice with swings, he landed hard with the right on the wind and followed this up with blows on the mouth. Munroe drew first blood with a hard left on the Buffalo puglist's mouth. Limerick clinched. Munroe drew first blood with a hard left on the Buffalo puglist's mouth. What was once a gridiron on South Field, Morningside Heights, will soon be trans-formed into a skating rink for the benefit of Columbia's hockey team. An embankment has been built around an oblong space about 100 feet long and 50 feet wide, and this will be flooded in a day or two. If the cold weather continues the rink will be ready for use by the end of the week. With the new rink it will be possible to hold daily practice. The Columbia players will work during the Christmas holidays in order to get ready for the intercollegiate games with Yale, Harvard, Brown and Princeton, which begin in January. It is also likely that a game will be arranged with Cornell

SHARKEY WOULD FIGHT JEFF At the World's Fair Next Year-What the Champion Says.

Tom Sharkey attended the mill between Tom Sharkey attended the mill between Eddie Connolly and Charley Hitte last Monday night. Before the mill Jake Casey, manager of the club where the fight took place, announced that the sailor would be matched to fight Jim Jeffries at the World's Fair at St. Louis next year in a twenty round that When Sharkey was asked about the last week I had a talk with a St. Louis sporting promoter, who told me that, despite all the talk to the contrary, fights would be held in that city next summer. I told him that I was ready to meet Jeffries or Jim Corbett, and he said that he would try his best to bring such a contest about. He also gave me to understand that the St. Louis authorities would issue a permit for such a mill and several others.

Jeffries, who is playing at the Dewey Theatre this week, said that he had not heard anything as yet of the prospective mill. "But if there is anything doing and if they will give me the right sort of an inducement you can count yours truly in," he added.

Joe Eagan, Jeffries's manager, said he was in communication with one of the St. Louis fistic promoters about Jeffries's appearance in the Mound City. "As yet," said Eagan, "I have heard nothing definite. I guess it is too far off to make any calculations one way or the other. But Jeffries will be ready to go on as soon as we are assured that everything is O. K."

HITTE KNOCKS OUT CONNOLLY. A Hard Fight, and the End Comes in the

SCHENECTADY, N. Y., Dec. 15.—Charlie Hitte of Albany last night knocked out Eddie Connolly of St. John, N. B., in the ninth round of one of the hardest fights ever witnessed in this section. The fight was held at the Jake Casey Athletic Club, just outside the city limits. The hall in which the fight was held was by far too small to accommodate the crowd. Hundreds were outside clamoring for admission. Before the fight clamoring for admission. Before the fight started the crowd without broke in the doors and a panie within was narrowly averted.

Hitte was a 7 to 10 favorite. In Hitte's corner were Pinkey Evans of Yonkers and Roger Ryan of Troy. Tom Sharkey was behind Connolly. Sharkey was cheered loudly.

The battle was at catch weights and was to have been twenty rounds. The mill was a fast one, and there was heavy hitting on both sides. In the first six rounds Connolly was all over his opponent. In the fourth Connolly had the Albany man wabbling, the sound of the gong saving the latter. In the sixth also Connolly looked like the winner, but after that he tired and was finally knocked out with a right swing on the point of the jaw.
